Course Overview:

NephMadness is an online interactive medical education program that has gained momentum and enthusiasm over its 10+ years of existence. Participants will be directed to AJKDBlog, which is the home site of NephMadness. Several articles reviewing various "regions" of nephrology will be housed there, which are all written and linked to references with the help of an expert in the field. A bracket matching up the topics in each region is created by the user, similar to the NCAA Basketball March Madness bracket. Each matchup is voted on by a panel of experts (Blue Ribbon Panel), which determines the winners/losers. As regions are eliminated, a concurrent discussion occurs amongst participants on social media with the hashtag #nephmadness. Editorials and commentaries by other experts in the field are uploaded to AJKDBlog during the month of March. This novel experience incorporates teaching, learning, gaming, competition, and discussion all in one, and delivers it all in a free online platform for all users to participate.
